Ground to Sound Film Festival

New Environmental Film Festival Calls to Creatives

Tacoma, WA: The City of Tacoma, in collaboration with local marketing agency Foster's Creative, is looking for creative's to submit a piece to the newly announced Ground to Sound Film Festival.

Dive into an ocean of inspiration, as we come together to celebrate our shared mission of protecting and restoring our precious natural resources. Ground to Sound Film Fest is a call to action by the City of Tacoma for the health of our neighborhoods, our marine ecosystems, and Tacoma's future.

We believe everything we do supports healthy neighborhoods and a thriving Puget Sound, leaving a better Tacoma for all.

We are inviting all filmmakers, storytellers, and environmental enthusiasts to submit their cinematic creations! Films should highlight the urgent need to reduce stormwater drain pollution that can impair and damage our valuable ecosystems and the environment we all cherish.

The film fest features 4 submission tiers including a youth tier (ages 0-12), teen tier (ages 13-19), amateur tier and a professional adult tier. As well as an Instagram photo contest. 5 winning submissions from each tier (20 films in total) will be selected to win cash prizes. The top 3 from each tier will be screened at the Ground to Sound Film Fest.

All films and photos are due by 12/15/2023 in order to be considered. For submission requirements, judging criteria, prize information and more festival information visit <https://www.groundtosoundfilmfest.com/>.

The newly announced festival is tentatively scheduled to take place February 2024 with full event details to follow.

"Your creation is the catalyst that motivates positive change."
